

Environmental Project Manager needed for Environmental Firm in Austin

Baer Engineering and Environmental Consulting, Inc. is looking for an experienced Environmental Project Manager to join our team.

We are a problem-solving company dedicated to excellence and committed to client satisfaction. We have an interdisciplinary team of engineers, geologists, biologists, archaeologists, and industrial hygiene professionals. We work on a wide array of projects including but not limited to assessing environmental impacts of proposed project designs, storm water and wastewater management, sustainable design, subsurface investigations, and industrial hygiene. Our major clients include local industries, prime firms, contractors, City of Austin, and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Typical responsibilities include, but are not limited to:

- Manage environmental projects ranging from Phase I Environmental Site Assessment (ESA) to NEPA documentation, including study/project design, scheduling to meet deadline goals, allocating resources, collecting data, writing reports, and communicating with team members and clients.
- Assist clients on the interpretation of current municipal, state, and federal regulations.
- Prepare permitting application packages with local, state, and federal agencies.
- Research local, state, and federal regulations to assist clients with environmental permitting requirements and write reports pertaining to a variety of environmental services.
- Coordinate with USACE, USFWS, TCEQ, TPWD, TxDOT, and city municipalities.
- Strive to build long-term and effective relationships with clients and the team.

Education/Experience:

* Bachelor's degree (Science, Engineering, or Environmental)

* Minimum 10 to 15 years of applicable work experience in Texas is preferred

Skills and Special Requirements:

* Excellent writing skills. A part of your interview will be a short written exercise on a general topic to be selected at the time of your visit.

* Excellent communication skills and project management skills.

If you are interested in talking to us about possible employment, please send a copy of your resumé, cover letter, salary requirements, and list of representative projects to:
